Ah! little thought we then, my dear, That fate would part us twain, Who loved each other with a love That bordered nigh to pain. If ever we should chance to meet On Lifes sin-troubled sea, Would you, my queen, forget the past, And tryst again with me t Or would you turn aside your head, And pass me coldly by Without a word, a smile, or look Of pardon in your eye 1 No, no, my sweetheart, when we meet (And meet we shall some day,) T will be with eager, outstretched hands, Just in the olden way. MARY GLEN. The laverock pipes fu sweetly To the day when newly born, And blithely...

Great electronic book and useful one. It can be writter in straightforward terms rather than difficult to understand. Once you begin to read the book, it is extremely difficult to leave it before concluding.
