Fisheries and Research for Tunas and Tuna-like Species in the Western Central Atlantic: Implications of the Agreement for the Implementation of the Provisions of the United Nations Convention on the Law of the

By Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations, Robin Mahon

Food & Agriculture Organization of the United Nations (FAO). Paperback. Book Condition: new. BRAND NEW, Fisheries and Research for Tunas and Tuna-like Species in the Western Central Atlantic: Implications of the Agreement for the Implementation of the Provisions of the United Nations Convention on the Law of the Sea of 10 December 1982 Relating to the Conservation and Management of Straddling Fish Stocks and Highly Migratory Fish Stocks, Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations, Robin Mahon, In the Western Central Atlantic Fishery Commission (WECAFC) area, large pelagics contribute only about 6% of total landings, but are nonetheless significant for many countries. Large pelagic fishes are caught in all WECAFC states, and within the WECAFC region by several distant water fishing nations. However only 19 of 40 WECAFC Member States report catches to FAO. The fisheries range in scale and technological sophistication from artisanal fishers trolling from canoes to modern commercial longliners and purse seiners (mostly from distant water fishing nations). The available information on development of small-scale and large scale fleets targeting large pelagics, indicates a significant trend of increasing

Reviews

Extensive guide! Its such a very good read. I really could comprehended almost everything out of this created e ebook. You will like how the writer write this ebook.
-- Katherine Feil

This book may be worth buying. I have read and i am confident that i am going to planning to go through once more once again in the future. Its been written in an exceptionally easy way and it is simply soon after i finished reading this publication in which actually altered me, modify the way i believe.
-- Faye Shanahan