Brand New Book  Print on Demand .The Leadership for Public Safety Report is a synopsis of meetings sponsored by the COPS Office in 2009 and 2010 which examined various dimensions of public safety leadership. Discussions on leadership training venues and resources, availability of training, determining what works, and resistance to change revealed a host of dilemmas faced by agencies when deciding what training is appropriate for their department. Viewpoints of experts on emerging issues brought to light existing gaps in training such as; political issues faced by law enforcement leaders, management issues, ethics of leadership, emotional leadership, and empowerment. The report concludes with recommendations on possible ways the COPS Office can address gaps revealed during these meetings and how experiences from the private sector might provide guidance for future public safety leadership programs.
